KENYA ELECTIONS A REFERENDUM ON ICC

If Kenya's presidential hopeful Uhuru Kenyatta wins the March 4th elections, his first foreign trip along with the vice-president could be to The Hague to face trial for crimes against humanity.

For East Africa's economic power house, the issue of a looming International Criminal Court (ICC) trial for Kenyatta has sparked fear of economic and diplomatic consequences should he win and fail to comply analysts warn.

It raises the prospect the Kenya a regional diplomatic hub, popular tourist destination and with a growing economic buoyed by foreign investment cloud follow the path of pariah state Sudan, the only other country to elect a president Indicted by the ICC.
